TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 12

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

BY THE GOVERNOR.

Since the early days of the Republic it has been the grateful pleasure and custom of the people to assemble once a year, and by thanksgiving, praise and feasting, render unto the Giver of All Good a sincere expression of gratitude for His unfailing care and goodness.

Now, therefore, I, William D. Hoard, governor of the state of Wisconsin, in conformity with this most fitting custom and the proclamation of the president of the United States, do appoint Thursday, November 28th, 1889, as a day of thanksgiving.

I furthermore recommend that on that day the people of Wisconsin abstain from all labor and give thanks to Almighty God, by appropriate exercises in their places of worship and their homes, for the abundant mercies which we have received at His hands in the past year.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in [Great Seal] Madison, this 7th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

WILLIAM D. HOARD.

ERNST G. TIMME, Secretary of State.

HOW TO REFORM CAUCUSES.

It is frequently urged by ministers, as for example, by the Rev. Dr. Hodge, in his sermon on Sunday evening, that caucuses are frequently held in saloons or in the interests of those engaged in the liquor business. In the large cities where democratic politics is in the ascendency, this may be true, but as a rule the charge will not hold good as to the republican party. The readers of the Gazette will remember that last year a statement was published to the effect that a majority of the polling places in Chicago under the control of the democrats were located in saloons; and in New York city, in the heavier democratic precincts, scores of polling places were held in bar-rooms. It must be said to the honor of the republican party, that, even in great cities, it has never bowed to the liquor interest to the extent that it has located its polling places in establishments where liquors are sold. It may have erred in exceptional cases, but the instances are rare.

But to the other point—that of the caucuses being held in the interest of the saloon. The writer of this cannot remember of ever attending a republican caucus in Janesville when a saloon keeper was present. Neither does he ever remember of the caucus or the convention being controlled by the liquor interest. And another thing. He never remembers a single instance when a republican caucus or a democratic caucus, was held in a bar-room. They have been held in such places of respectability that even a minister might attend them and not in the least degrade himself, and yet the writer himself does not remember of ever seeing a minister at a political caucus.

Therefore the point is this: If political caucuses are a thing to be reformed, why do not church members and ministers try to reform them by honoring them with their presence? Every voter is interested in the political primaries Every voter should attend them. It is neither wise nor manly for a minister or any one else, to refuse to attend a political caucus, and then stand afar off and whine because caucuses are run in the interest of the liquor traffic. It is a matter of fact, that if ministers who have so much to say of corruption in politics and of caucuses and convention wearing the saloon collar, would attend these political gatherings more than they do, and take a wider course of political reading, they would be the better able to more intelligently discuss political questions. A minister, just as much as a layman, should attend political primaries. As a rule they are respectable gatherings, and if any should be unfortunate in not belonging to that class, they should be made such by the presence and personal influence of ministers and the better class of citizens generally. If the pulpit will insist in not being represented in a political gathering, then the pulpit has no right to complain of caucus management.

FREE TRADE MEANS HARD TIMES.

It goes without dispute that the people of the United States—farmers, mechanics, laborers, and other workers—are vastly better off than those in similar occupations in other lands, and consequently are the best customers in the world. This is why they are so ceaselessly importuned to divide their trade with foreigners who are unable to elsewhere find buyers for all they wish to sell, and to aid them in getting the desired hold upon our trade is the aim of free traders now working under the guise of "tariff reform"

There would be very few workers for free trade if it was not expected thereby to increase the sale of foreign products in this country; hence the lively interest of foreign manufacturers, and the importers and distributors of foreign products. Before consenting to let them have their way, voters will do well to carefully count the cost of such a concession. In the first place, we have no more work than will keep our own people occupied after allowing them time for necessary recreation. Increased use of goods and wares made in other countries will necessarily diminish purchases of similar articles made in this country, and to that extent deprive some of our people of their present employment. No new business seems likely to open to engage those thus crowded out of enterprises thus established, leaving out of the account the other thousands crowding for employment as the result of our steadily augmenting population, as legislation operating to break down existing enterprises will tend to discourage attempts at establishing new ones.

The few lines of domestic business not killed outright under a policy of free foreign trade could not long remain profitable to those now controlling them. They would soon become so crowded that neither proprietors nor employes could get from them more than a scanty living. As the margin of profit for the one is narrowed, the tenure of employment for the other becomes more uncertain; and when the free traders' millenium is ushered in it will find few in condition to share in its promised blessings. To the mass of men, to be out of work is to be out of money—a condition in which it makes but little difference how cheap may be the prices of articles beyond their reach. Of all men these should be the last to aid in fastening upon the country a policy dictated by foreigners who seek to impair its existing prosperity, by taking from the pockets of the working people a portion of the wages they now receive, to pay for competing labor performed across the sea.

PAYNE ON POLITICS.

If there is any man in the northwest who has a right to speak on the political situation, it is Henry C. Payne, chairman of the republican state central committee of Wisconsin, and a member of the republican national committee. Whenever he speaks on all questions political, he speaks with the authority of an expert, and has a right to be heard.

The other day Mr. Payne was in New York and there fell among the Bohemians, and this is what he told a representative of the Mail and Express. In New York it seems to me that it is plain that the party in New York city should hereafter keep clear of entangling alliances with either branch of the democrats. Let our people stand up and be counted and maintain their own selfrespect. A defeat under such circumstances does us no harm, but to educate our voters about half the time to vote the democratic ticket is very bad policy in my judgment. At least we have found it so in the west. I have no doubt that a straight ticket in New York at every election will result in a few years in very materially increasing the vote of the city. That was our experience in Milwaukee: As long as we were looking for alliances with factions of the democratic party we never made any headway, but as soon as we changed policy and put up a straight republican ticket at every election the party gained immeasurably, and now we at nearly every election carry Milwaukee, which was formerly a democratic stronghold, by good majorities. It seems to me that the same policy here would be wiser than the one which has prevailed in the last few years. Milwaukee was formerly, relatively, as great a democratic stronghold as New York is to-day, and in fifteen years of voting on straight party lines we have overcome this difference, and now the city is good for from 1,500 to 4,000 republican majority at every election. Constant alliance with one and another faction of the democratic party weakens the hold of the party upon our own voters.

In regard to the situation in the new states, Mr. Payne told some things that are worth repeating: "The state of Washington is likely to be the strongest republican state on the coast. Our leaders there are well united, and there is every reason to believe that the 10,000 majority which we obtained at the recent election will be increased in the future. In Montana the republicans have made a fight against great odds; the combination known as the "Big Four" in the democratic party represents the most powerful and influential interests of the state. It consists of Broadwater, of the Manitoba railroad; Gov. Hauser, who is interested in mining and railroad enterprises to a great extent; Marcus Daly, the general manager of the Anaconda Copper Mines, the largest copper mines in the world, employing about three thousand men at Butte and Anaconda (he was chairman of the democratic state committee during the recent campaign), and Mr. Clark, the democratic candidate for congress last fall."

It may be new to some to understand that those four influential democrats, shrewder than the average members of their party, came out for protection, because they clearly saw that without such a position, the democratic party in Montana was doomed. It is a wise democrat who can profit by the blunder Cleveland made on the tariff issue.

Mahone is a dead issue, but it does not follow of necessity that the republican party of Virginia must go down with him Let the republicans of the Old Dominion select a leader of a different and less objectionable pattern and rally round the flag again.—Chicago Tribune.

There are other republican candidates who are dead issues. If the republican leaders of Ohio and Iowa had wisely responded to the sentiment of the people there would have been no defect in either state. To keep the republican party's head above water, it is necessary in republican states to nominate unobjectionable men.

MISS WILLARD WINS.

UNANIMOUSLY CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF THE W. C. T. U.

The Morton Hotel Matter Settled—Interesting Reports—The Demorest Diamond Medal Awarded.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—The W. C. T. U. convention at Battery D opened Monday with the usual Bible reading. This was followed by the opening of the business meeting at 10 o'clock.

The interest in the proceedings of the day centered in the election of officers, which was set for 10:20 a. m. The balloting on the informal ballot for president commenced about 12 o'clock, and it was nearly 1 o'clock before the result was announced. It resulted in an overwhelming majority for Miss Frances E. Willard, Mrs. J. Ellen Foster receiving but 11 votes. The secretary was then instructed to cast the unanimous vote of the convention for Miss Willard. The convention then adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Later in the day Mrs. Buell was re-elected corresponding secretary for the tenth time, receiving 363 of the 383 ballots cast. Mrs. Woodbridge was re-elected recording secretary for the thirteenth time, receiving 376 out of 386. Miss Esther Fugh was re-elected treasurer with the same unanimity as she has been each year since 1879. She said that the first year she collected $800, and now, with every State and Territory, except Alaska, represented in the convention, the receipts for the last year were $23,000, in addition to bequests amounting to $8,000 or more.

Miss Willard here got in a surprise. She said she was anxious to swell the total receipts this year above all others, and therefore she gave the union the royalty on her publications after purchasing the plates, amounting to $2,700. There was prolonged applause, coupled with loud protests and motions not to accept the gift, but the president refused to entertain the motions, the first time, she explained, she had ever done so while presiding.

The convention had a good deal of business on its program for the day. There were a large number of reports of superintendents of departments to be submitted. The matter of liquor being sold in Vice-President Morton's hotel again came up. Miss Willard read the following telegram:

"To the W. C. T. U. Convention: Liquor is sold in the Shoreham under barroom license obtained by Vice-President Morton's manager, James K. Keenan.

"SARAH D. LA FETRA,
"Washington, D. C."

Mrs. Wallace of Indiana made a motion that the whole subject be dismissed, adding that "inasmuch as Mr. Morton occupies the second position in the government under a party pledged to high license, he could not do otherwise without rebuking his party." This was put in the form of a resolution and went through without any opposition.

Several gentlemen made speeches to the convention at intervals during the day. Senator Blair of New Hampshire spoke in a very happy vein. Dr. W. G. Anderson of Brooklyn talked to the convention on the subject of physical training among women and children. He argued for some reform in dress, particularly abolishing the corset, and for the bodily exercise which will give woman proper physical development as the best possible aid to mental improvement. He offered to train five girls at the Adelphi academy, Brooklyn, for one year free of charge, to be selected by this body, which announcement drew forth a burst of applause, and the doctor got a rising vote of thanks.

Among the reports made that of Mrs. Mary H. Hunt of Massachusetts, as superintendent of the department of scientific temperance instruction, attracted marked attention. Her report shows that within seven years the Legislatures of twenty-seven States and the national Congress have made the science of temperance a mandatory study in schools under their control. Only eleven States now remain without this Legislation. While it is yet hardly time to look for results from this work, reports coming from all parts of the country testify that public opinion is being influenced by what is thought in the schools.

Other reports were by Miss Julia Colman of New York, on temperance literature: Mrs. Forbes, Woman's Temperance Publication association; Miss Lucia E. F. Kimball of Maine, work in the Sunday schools, and Mrs. Col. Parker talked about dress reform. Mrs. Lucy Rider described her school for deaconesses on the north side. Mrs. St. John of Kansas, Colo., George Woodford, Mrs. Laura Haviland, the octogenerian Quakeress, the Rev. Dr. Boole of New York, Mrs. Powell of the Indian Territory, and James C. Ambrose were introduced to the convention and several of them spoke briefly.

The largest number of people gathered in the Battery during the convention assembled in the evening to listen to the national oratorical contest for the diamond medal. The contestants were introduced by number and delivered their addresses, and subsequently they were made known by name and State and gave one minute sentiments. They were Master Ray Ludwick of Michigan, the Misses Daisy Stoddard of Nebraska, Eunice Melville of Minnesota, Ollie Hiatt of Kansas, Minnie Ethington of Illinois, Alice Hecklinger of New York, and Mabel Underhill of Michigan.

The contestants had won silver and gold medals in their respecive States, entitling them to compete for the diamond medal. The selections recited were all chosen from the best utterances of representative temperance men and women of the United States.

The judges made their award after little delay, giving the medal to Miss Daisy Stoddard, who is only 12 years of age. The donor of the medal, Mr. Demorest, was compelled to go to the front of the platform. Then speeches by Gen. New Dow and Gen. Fisk wound up the evening's exercises amid much enthusiasm.

FORMING A GIGANTIC TRUST.

Window Glass Manufacturers to Enter Into a Big Pool.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—A gigantic pool, in which all the leading window glass manufacturers of the United States will co-operate, is now in process of organization. The combination will include the members of the Pittsburg Consolidated Window Glass company, the United Glass company, the headquarters of which are now in Chicago, and the Chambers & McKee company, owners of the tank glass factory located at Jeannette, Pa. There is a strong probability that all the window-glass manufacturers of Baltimore and the large concerns of Ohio and Indiana, which are not controlled by the United company, will also enter the combination. The new pooling arrangement will go into effect about Jan. 1. The object is to regulate prices and shut out foreign importation, if possible.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

CHEERS FOR THE POPE.

The Sovereign Pontiff's Name Greeted with Acclamations.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 12.—The 1,200 delegates to the first congress of the Catholic laymen of the United States was called to order shortly before noon Monday by Hon. W. J. Onahan of Chicago. Every seat in Concordia hall was filled, and the galleries were crowded with spectators.

Archbishop Ireland invoked the divine blessing. In a few spirited remarks introduced ex-Gov. Carroll as temporary chairman. Mr. Onahan mentioned the name of Pope Leo. Instantly there was hand clapping and cheers all over the hall soon growing into a tumult of enthusiasm. The scene was a notable one as the delegates swung their hats and shouted a greeting to the Roman Pontiff.

The following cablegram from Rome was read:

"HIS EMINENCE, CARDINAL GIBBONS, BALTIMORE: Having made known to the Holy Father the expressions of devotion conveyed to him on the part of the Catholic Congress to be held in Baltimore, His Holiness graciously bids me say that he most affectionately imparts his blessing to all the members.

[Signed.] "M. CARD RAMPOLLA."

Daniel Dougherty of New York, was invited by the chairman to address the congress pending the appointment of committees. The famous orator was in his best form and voice, and was given a perfect ovation by the congress.

Father Nugent of Liverpool, England; Prime Minister Mercier of Quebec, and ex-Senator Francis A. Kernan also spoke. While the latter was yet speaking Cardinals Gibbons and Taschereau entered, and at the close of the ex-Senator's remarks Cardinal Gibbons formally welcomed the delegates, urging them to be independent in their deliberations as befits free men. A committee on resolutions was appointed; also a committee to invite President Harrison to honor the congress with his presence.

John G. Shea of New York, the historian, read a paper on "Catholic Congresses," Major Henry F. Brownson of Detroit one on "Lay Election in the Church," and Charles J. Bonaparte discussed "The Independence of the Holy See." In the course of Mr. Bonaparte's remarks great cheering was elicited by the declaration: "Whether the Pope be an exile or a captive, a subject he cannot be."

In the evening a crowded reception was given, the welcoming speech being made by ex-Congressman Roberts of Maryland.

OFFICIAL FIGURES.

Republicans Apparently Successful Except on the Head of the Ticket.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 12.—The official vote for the State officers was canvassed in every county Monday. Full returns from eighty-six of the ninety-nine counties of the State show that Boies (Dem.) for Governor is elected by a plurality estimated at 6,000. The lowest vote on the Republican ticket outside of Governor was for Lieutenant-Governor, and the returns in the 86 counties give Poyneer (Rep.) 150,031 and Bestow (Dem.) 152,543. A probable estimate in the thirteen remaining counties, basing the estimate on the vote for Hutchison, who runs behind Poyneer, gives Poyneer the election by about 500 plurality. The rest of the Republican ticket is, therefore, also elected by pluralities ranging from 1,000 to 3,000.

Ohio Election Returns.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 12.—The official returns from sixty counties received at the Secretary of State's office and telegraphic reports from the officials of the remaining twenty-eight indicate that the plurality of Lampsen (Rep.) for Lieutenant Governor will be 131. The Republicans elect all the State ticket except the Governor.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed. THE CLOTHES IN COURT.

CRONIN'S SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS IDENTIFIED.

The Blood-Stained Garments Exhibited to the Jury and the Public.

Where and How They Were Found—The Inner Circle of the Clan-na-Gael.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Miss Alice Johnson of 345 Austin avenue, an attendant in Dr. Belfield's office, was the first witness in the Cronin trial Monday. Miss Johnson testified that some time in May last she saw Capt. Schaak come into the Dr. office and lay a package on Dr. Belfield's desk.

"Did any one else touch this package before Dr. Belfield came in?" asked Mr. Longenecker.

"No, sir."

"Who first took that package off the desk?"

"Dr. Belfield."

"Did you know what was in it?"

"No, sir."

The contents of the package were, of course, not brought out on Miss Johnson's examination, but the fact was that this package contained the samples of cotton, hair, and chips which were stained with blood. These samples were afterward delivered by Dr. Belfield to Prof. Haines and Tolman for chemical and microscopical examination.

Henry Buchholez, a saloonkeeper at 2806 Cottage Grove avenue, was the next witness. He testified that Kunze boarded at his place under the name of Kaiser.

"Do you know John Kunze?" was Judge Longenecker's first question.

"I do."

"How did you know him?"

"He used to board by my place."

"When did he come there?"

"April 14."

"How long did he stay with you?"

"Till he was arrested."

Mr. Forrest objected to Buchholz's testifying, as his name was not furnished to the defense till just before court opened.

Judge McConnell said he would permit the defense to postpone their cross-examination of the witness on account of the short time which the defense knew of his being called to testify.

Charles Herckimer, a tailor, who keeps a shop near Buchholz's saloon, was the next witness. Herckimer testified that he knew Kunze. He had met Kunze in Buchholz's saloon, where the latter introduced him to Kunze, saying: "Mr. Herckimer, this is Mr. Kaiser." Kunze subsequently came to witness' tailor shop and had some work done, and gave the name of Kaiser. On another occasion the little German said his name was Kunze.

John P. Dunne, plumber at 997 Lincoln avenue, testified that he was in Cameron's saloon one night in April when Kunze and Coughlin entered. Dunne had previously known Kunze. Kunze came to witness where he had sat at a table and said: "Come, I want to introduce you to a friend of mine." He then introduced me to Dan Coughlin. Coughlin said he and Kunze were good friends, and that he would do anything he could for Kunze. Then we had some drinks and I went away."

Frank O. Washburn, a saloonkeeper at 1320 Wellington avenue, saw Kunze and O'Sullivan together at his saloon some time in March. They were driving a brown horse attached to a buggy. Kunze said he bought the horse from O'Sullivan and had promised to pay more than the horse was worth, so that he would get some spending money from his guardian. Witness rode to his home from the saloon with the two men. The purpose of the testimony was to show the intimacy existing between O'Sullivan and Kunze.

Joseph Petowski, a laborer in Keeley's brewery, testified that last spring he boarded at Buchholz's with Kunze. The accused gave his name as John Kaiser, and talked frequently of Lake View and invited the witness to go thither with him. The witness continued that Kunze, under the name of Kaiser, told him he was a decorator and received $36 a week pay. He said his mother lived in Lake View and he and witness would go out there, but whenever witness proposed the trip Kunze found some excuse for not going. Kunze referred several times to a house in Lake View to which they could go. Later he said the house was vacant, but there was a dog watching it. Kunze was away from his room all night one night in May.

Gus Klahre, the tinsmith, testified that one Monday morning in the early part of May Martin Burke and an expressman came to his father's tin-shop at 88 North Clark street.

"Burke had a galvanized iron-box about 14x26 inches in size, and he wanted the top soldered on it. This Cronin case was in the papers that morning, and I said something about it. Burke said he was 'a British spy and ought to be killed.'"

"What else did he say?"

"I said it was queer about Cronin's disappearance, and Burke said: 'Cronin was a ——— (using a vile epithet), and ought to be killed.'"

"What did you do with the box?"

"I tried to lift the cover of the box but he pushed my hand away and said: 'For God's sake, don't open that,' or something like that."

"Did Burke pay you?"

"He paid me $1.50."

"How was the box fastened?"

"It was tied with a clothes-line."

"He wouldn't let you open it?"

"No. I told him I'd have to take off the cord before I could make a job of it. He said it didn't make any difference how it was done—no matter how rough it might be. So I put a band around the box without taking off the cord."

"Who took the box away?"

"The expressman."

"Did Burke go with him?"

"Burke was paying me while the expressman was carrying out the box."

Burke's face flushed while Klahre was giving his testimony and he looked around with a smile, but he evidently didn't like the story.

"When did you next see Burke?"

"In the jail."

"What did Burke say?"

"When he saw me he looked down toward the floor and said: 'The ——— ———, (repeating a vile name) as though he was calling it to me."

"How near did Burke stay to you while you were fixing the box?"

"He staid right close to me all the time."

On cross-examination Klahre was asked:

"When was it this man brought you the box to be soldered?"

"Monday, May 6."

"How do you know it was May 6?"

"Because the papers had something in them the Sunday morning before about Dr. Cronin and about his being a spy."

"That is how you came to talk to Burke about it?"

"Yes."

"That's why you thought Cronin was a spy and you were interested in it?"

"Yes, sir."

"You didn't know that it was Burke at that time?"

"No, sir."

"What made you talk to Burke about it?"

"I just made the remark 'That was a strange thing about Dr. Cronin,' and Burke said: 'He was ——— ——— and a British spy, and ought to be killed.'"

"What was this box like?"

"It was a galvanized-iron box about 14 inches high, 14 inches wide, and about 26 inches long. It was covered with sand or mud."

"Looked as though it had been buried, eh?"

"Yes, that is what I thought then."

"Did you see the expressman?"

"Yes."

"What kind of a looking man was he?"

"Well, he was middle-sized, full-whiskered."

"How long did the expressman remain?"

"Only a few minutes."

"How long did Burke stay?"

"About an hour."

"Can you show by your book that any job was done that day or that you took in $1.50?"

"No. We don't keep a cash account that way."

"Who else was there besides you?"

"No one."

"You're sure that man was Burke?"

"Yes."

"You're certain of that?"

"Yes."

The fact was brought out that the only circumstance that could be shown by the books of the tinshop was the whereabouts of the men who worked in the shop. Witness said the men employed by his father had all gone out to work on jobs and he was alone in the shop. An expressman came into the shop just as the work on soldering the box was completed, and Burke and the man went away with the box. The box weighed about fifty pounds, in the estimation of the witness.

Michael Walsh was one of those Clan-na-Gael witnesses. He is a gas fitter. On the 29th of April Walsh went to Joliet to work. While there he saw Martin Burke. He had known Burke three or four years. He saw him first on the 9th of May. Witness took him to his boarding house and he roomed with the witness while there. Burke and witness returned to Chicago on the 18th of May, arriving here about 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Witness did not know of Burke's receiving any money while there; he remembered Burke showing him a letter with an enclosure, but it wasn't a money order.

Stephen Connelly, an old friend of Dr. Cronin who has testified before, was recalled. He was at the doctor's office the day P. O'Sullivan made the contract. Justice Mahoney introduced him to the iceman, and said that he had some private business with the doctor. Mr. Connelly only remained a few minutes.

Joseph O'Byrne had a conversation with John F. Beggs on Clark street, near the Chicago opera house block, on Tuesday, May 7. Maurice Morris and Dennis Ward were also present. The disappearance of Dr. Cronin was discussed, and Beggs said that he thought he would turn up all right. Ward then interjected that Cronin had skipped out with a woman and would return in a few days after his spree. O'Byrne asserted that the doctor had been murdered. At that Beggs turned to the witness and said:

"You don't know what you are talking about, because you don't belong to the inner circle. We (referring to himself and Ward) are posted."

O. H. Cheney, superintendent of sewers, testified that he had charge of the maps and records relating to sewers of the city of Chicago.

Dr. John F. Williams, of No. 427 Center street, testified that he had known Patrick O'Sullivan several years; had treated him professionally three or four years; his doctor bill didn't amount to more than $5 for the whole period. There were several physicians practicing in the immediate vicinity of O'Sullivan's house.

Maurice Morris then took the stand.

"On the 7th of May," said the witness, "Dennis Ward and I were talking of the disappearance of Dr. Cronin, when Ward made the remark that Cronin had gone off on a spree with some woman. I got angry and asserted that he was murdered by men in Chicago. John F. Beggs and Joseph O'Byrne had joined us in the meantime, and Beggs said: 'You ain't posted. You ain't in the inner circle. We belong to the inner circle (meaning himself and Ward) and we know what we're talking about.'"

The witness had been a member of the Clan-na-Gael for four years, and had frequently heard of the "inner circle." When the I. N. B. and U. B. were amalgamated a few picked men had formed a secret society within a secret society. The witness had heard of the inner circle long before Dr. Cronin was murdered, but did not know Beggs was a member until he himself admitted it.

Michael Gilbert, a sewer-cleaner, was working on Evanston avenue last week flushing the sewers. He was assisted by Michael Reese and Frederick Meyer. About 3 o'clock Friday afternoon they reached Sulzer road and Evanston avenue.

"What did you find near the corner of Buena and Evanston avenues?"

"I went to the manhole and raised the lid and found the hole half full of water. I then went to the next manhole and raised the lid there too, and saw what looked like a lot of old rags. The flow in the sewer there is from north to south."

"What did you do?"

"I called on Michael Reese to go down into the manhole and pull out the old sachel. I had tried to pull it up, but it was so rotten that it fell to pieces. I handed Reese a bucket and he got it under the things, and in that way we got them out. We got up a box. It was about eighteen inches long. At first I thought it was a block of wood, but after we got it out I saw it was a box."

Mr. Forrest—I object to this evidence on the ground that it is improper testimony.

The Court—The objection is overruled.

State's Attorney Longenecker (to witness)—Was there any lid on the box?

"Yes, sir; but it was loose."

"Well, what did you do?"

"I lifted it onto the street. Then the small sachel with both ends off was brought out."

"What did you do then?"

"All the things, including the hat and the clothes, were put in a bunch together."

"What happened then?"

"I told one of the men to go for a patrol wagon. The things got out on the manhole were all put on a stretcher just as they were taken out of the manhole and put in the patrol wagon. I did not help to put it in, but I saw it put in when the patrol drove up."

Mr. Forrest declined to cross-examine the witness and moved that the testimony be stricken from the record.

The court overruled the motion.

Michael Reese, one of the sewer cleaners who found the clothes and other articles, was then called to the stand and corroborated the testimony of the previous witness.

At this stage the articles found in the sewer were brought into court, and the entrance created a little sensation. The prisoner Beggs did dot seem to pay any attention to them. Coughlin and Kunze craned their necks to see them. Burke got very red in the face, but sat motionless in his chair except that he worked his jaws vigorously, as if chewing a large quid of tobacco. Those immediately behind him said his whole frame shuddered at the first glimpse he got of the articles, but such a motion was not apparent from the reporters' table. The production of the articles was evidently a surprise to the jury, and they looked at them with manifest interest as they were handled by the officers.

"Is that the box?" asked the State's attorney of the witness as soon as the things were arranged as he wished them.

"Yes, sir, that is the box and the splint that was in it. I got a hold of the sachel and the box and sent them up out of the manhole, and as soon as they were moved the water went with a rush. There was a hat found. It was put with the rest of the things."

The witness was not cross-examined and Mr. Forrest moved to exclude the testimony.

The motion was overruled.

Frederick Meyer was the next witness called and corroborated the testimony of the previous two witnesses.

Mr. Forrest also declined to cross-examine this witness, and made his usual motion to exculde the testimony, which was overruled.

Lieut. Koch testified that he went to Lake View with the patrol wagon, helped load on the articles and saw them brought to the Central station.

Chief Hubbard testified to the articles being the same he had received from the patrol wagon; that they were now in the same condition as when he received them except that the filth had been removed from them.

Other officers testified to having the articles in custody from their receipt at the Central station to their production in court.

Joseph Visner, a former inspector of sewers in the city of Lake View, was next called. He testified that the sewer on Evanston avenue had been built two years and a half ago, and had never been cleaned until last Friday. It had never been flushed. That sewer emptied through Graceland avenue sewer into the lake.

The last witness called was Mrs. Conklin. On taking the stand she was directed by the State's Attorney to examine the hat in the pile of clothes. After doing that she said:

"That hat is the one worn by Dr. Cronin when he left my house on the evening of May 4."

"Did you ever see that overcoat?"

"Yes; that overcoat is Dr. Cronin's."

"When did you last see it?"

"The last time before seeing it in your office was on May 4. Dr. Cronin wore it that evening when he left my house."

"Did you ever see that box before?"

"I did in Dr. Cronin's possession. That is the splint box he took with him the evening of May 4."

"Did you ever see that sachel before?"

"Yes. That is the leather hand sachel he carried his surgical instruments in. He took it out with him on the 4th of May."

"Did you ever see that pocket case before?"

"Yes, often. I described it before it was found. It was Dr. Cronin's."

"Did you ever see that book of surgical and medical references?"

"Yes. It was Dr. Cronin's."

Are you able to identify that coat?"

"Yes, it is the dress coat Dr. Cronin wore the evening he left my house. He wore in the button-hole of it a badge of the Royal Arcanum just like the one produced."

"Do you recognize that cuff-botton?"

"Yes, it was Dr. Cronin's."

The prosecution then offered all the articles identified as evidence in the case.

Mr. Forrest objected to their introduction and insisted on knowing the specific purpose for which they were offered.

The court overruled Mr. Forrest's objection.

There was then a wrangle about who should take charge of the exhibits. Mr. Forrest insisted that they should be placed in custody of the clerk, but the court finally decided that the State's attorney should retain possession of them on the understanding that they should be guarded by two officers, and that their condition should not be changed in any way except that they might be dried.

THREE BLOWN TO ETERNITY.

Fatality and Havoc Wrought by an Explosion of Flash Powder.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 12.—An explosion of flash powder occurred at the chemical manufacturing establishment of Wiley & Wallace yesterday afternoon by which three men were instantly killed and one fatally and another seriously injured. A large bottle of flash powder had been standing on a shelf for a long time and Joseph Wiley, a member of the firm, determined to get rid of it on account of its dangerous nature. He took the bottle to a sink in the rear of the basement, and calling to his assistance Charles R. Rhinedoller, a chemist, and Rudolph Lippmann, an employe, proceeded to pour the stuff down the sink. Rhinedoller held a hose and poured water on the compound as it ran from the bottle, and Lippman assisted Mr. Wiley. William Kidd, another employe, stood by and watched the proceedings. Just exactly how the explosion occurred is not known, but it is believed that the powder, on account of its age, was slow in running from the bottle, and that Mr. Wiley must have struck it against the sink to loosen it. Immediately there was a terrific explosion, accompanied by a deafening report, the force of which shook the houses in the neighborhood. Wiley, Lippman and Rhinedoller were instantly killed, their bodies being dashed against the walls of the basement and literally torn to pieces. Kidd was frightfully injured and can not live. Alfred Moffett, the engineer, is very badly hurt, but his injuries are not believed to be fatal. Thirteen girls and a number of men were employed on the upper floors, and they were panic-stricken by the shock. The girls attempted to jump from the windows, and some of them fainted, thus adding to the excitement. The building and stock were badly damaged, all the windows and bottles being smashed, the lower floors torn up, and the walls damaged. Mr. Wiley, who was 38 years old, was the senior member of the firm, and leaves a wife and several children.

Trouble Among the King's Daughters.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 12.—There is trouble in the order of the King's Daughters here. The royal chaper, which is composed of delegates from various circles in the State, met here yesterday and was slimly attended. The small attendance was attributed to the publication in a newspaper of a card supposed to have been written by a prominent member, in which the writer urged the King's Daughters to get up a petition to Queen Victoria for the pardon of Mrs. Maybrick. It is said the publication of this letter kept many delegates from the meeting. The matter was not formally discussed, but the ladies who were present were angry at the publication.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to uneven clothing of the body, rapid clothing when in perspiration, &c. The important point is, that a cold in the head is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has produced its superiority, and sufferers should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

A CAUSTIC LETTER FROM JOHN M. WARD.

He Asserts the "Reserve" Rule Will Not Prevent Players Engaging Themselves Outside of the League Clubs—New Yorks Are Champions—Sporting Notes.

In a sharp, open letter published in New York Sunday John M. Ward asserts that under the reserve rule in all its stages of development and elaboration, from its inception as a league measure in 1880 down to its greatest extension under the national agreement, there has never been anything to prevent a club from giving his services to any player outside of those associated under mutual agreement to respect the rule, provided he could find such a club able and willing to pay him his price. Then, after quoting the much discussed paragraph 18 of the contracts used by the league last year, he says:

"How the condition that the player should not be reserved at a reduction of salary was violated and the players cheated out of the only real advantage they were supposed to have gained need not be recounted here. The league's treachery and double dealing on that point are familiar to everyone. The point which concerns this discussion is the actual meaning of that paragraph as it now stands. It is a well established rule of law that where technical terms are used in a contract evidence may be adduced to show their meaning. The word 'reserve,' as here used, is technical. It is used in this sense only in base ball. The 'reserve' rule was that by which a certain definite circle of clubs managed to monopolize the services of their players and 'reservation' was the word by which this power was designated. The word 'reserve' was therefore used in the new contract for the distinct purpose of recognizing this power only as it then existed. The matter was thoroughly discussed by the players beforehand. Other forms of expression were at first suggested, but under the direction of our legal adviser it was decided to employ the word 'reserve,' because it was of certain meaning, because it meant the same power then exercised, neither less nor more. The effect of paragraph 18 with relation to the player's future service is then simply this. He has given the club a qualified option, an option as against every club under the national agreement, but not as against any club or body of clubs outside of that circle. I am reassured in this belief by the opinion of one of the ablest members of the New York bar and a former occupant of the bench. In view of the foregoing facts the desperate claim of the club to extend the meaning of the word 'reserve' to include clubs outside the national agreement—that is, to make it an unqualified option—is unfounded and absurd.

The plain meaning of Ward's letter is that the meeting of the brotherhood in New York will result in a declaration of independence. There has been reasonable ground for doubt heretofore as to whether the players really meant to do more than scare the league magnates into doing away with the most obnoxious rules enacted of late years, but Ward's open abuse of the league gives notice that the players mean to cut loose from the present organizations and go into business on their own account in 1890, as has all along been claimed for them by those in their confidence. It is interesting to note that he in effect says that last year the players understood that by the use of the word "reserve" in the brotherhood contracts they would hoodwink the league and prevent effective legal action against them when they should enlist as members of clubs not within the scope of the national agreement. The inference is that even then in the inner circle of the brotherhood it was understood that in 1890 the league players would be led into another fold. There is a flavor of double-dealing in this that the smart president of the brotherhood seems to have overlooked.

Brotherhood Men Keep Mum.

A New York dispatch says: "The story to the effect that the Brotherhood of ball players will hold no conference with the National league this year, but will, backed by well-known capitalists, run a league of its own next year, creates considerable amount of talk in base-ball circles, and not a little surprise among the players who have organized the intended movement. T. J. Keefe, secretary of the brotherhood, said: "No player, unless very indiscreet, will speak upon the brotherhood's intentions until after the meeting of that organization. It would be a breach of faith and might seriously injure the players cause. Come around next Monday and you can get the whole story."

Mr. Blackhurt, counsel for the brotherhood, said: "We can get more capital than we want. In New York and all the other cities the capitalists have come to the front and offered all the funds that are required. All we want is the three years' contract at our present rate of wages, with a percentage of the profits added."

This evening President Day denied that any offer of the presidency of the new organization had been made to him. He does not think the brotherhood will amount to much. He says about half a dozen men are managing affairs and the rank and file have not been consulted and without the assistance of the latter the brotherhood would fall flat. Another name mentioned in connection with the presidency is that of Henry Chadwick.

The New Yorks Are Champions.

The series of games between the Brooklyn and New York baseball clubs came to an end at the end of nine games and New York having won six of them, was given the championship of the world in baseball playing.

Sporting Notes.

Mark Baldwin has his name down on a Columbus contract already.

Tom Loftus, of the Clevelands, has signed to manage the Cincinnati nine next year.

The Columbus club accomplished the feat of whitewashing every club in the American association.

Ike Weir has arrived safely in San Francisco and will at once go to work for his fight with Billy Murphy.

Shindle of the '88 Detroit team was tenth batsman in the association this year with an average of .310.

Corrigan has sold King Roxbury and Tom Karl to W. P. Maxwell for $1,200 for the pair. They were well sold.

Peeples has given up playing ball altogether. He is traveling for a carriage furnishing house and is making plenty of money.

Kinslow, a discarded league player, has one of the best records in the International league, both in batting and fielding.

Axtell's trotting record has only been beaten by four other horses. These were Maud S, whose mile in 2:08¾ stands as the proudest achievement in the trotting course; Jay-Eye-See, 2:10; Guy, 2:10¾, and St. Julian, 2:11¼.

Of the first ten batsmen in the association Baltimore had three, St. Louis two, Athletic two, Columbus, Cincinnati, and Brooklyn one each.

Hackett, ex-manager of the Clevelands, Newarks, and other clubs, has been engaged to steer the Kansas City club to victory next year.

Elmer Smith has been signed as pitcher for the Kansas City club next year. He has been in the box for the Cincinnatis for the last three years.

If the brotherhood agitation continues very long the impecunious ball player will have to look out for some one to put up the usual winter advance.

Syntax, who ran some good races at the opening meeting at Morris park, having broken down in his sound leg, has been sent west and placed in the stud.

Kilrain very sensibly suggests that both himself and Sullivan would do well to refrain from fighting talk until that little difficulty down in Mississippi has been squared.

The Hough brothers have purchased a forty-acre farm near Flemington, N. J., and will winter their horses, including Come to Taw, there. There is a good half-mile track on the place.

Misty Morning defeated Milton and a French-bred trotter named Hocquanucourt for the Poule Internationale at Paris. The race was 3¾ miles and was won easily in 10:02 3-5, a 2:38 gait all the way.

It seems to be settled that Hamilton is to guide the stars of the Belmont stable next year in place of Garrison. The "Snapper" will not lack for an employer, however, if he wishes to make an engagement.

The New York players each received their share of the money from the benefit that was given at the Broadway Theater. Their share was $190, which is just $50 more than they got from last season's benefit.

Von der Ahe boasted that St. Louis would lead the association in team work this season. His pets are tied for first place in fielding with Cincinnati and are third in batting, Athletics being first and Cincinnati second.

F. Brannan, of Montpelier, O., has sold to George G. Hall, of Boston, Mass., for $2,000, the bay mare German Girl, by German Boy, dam by Anthony Wayne. She got a 2:27½ mark in the fourth heat of a race at Kendalville, Ind., Oct. 4.

P. Lorillard has bought back from W. H. Fearing the brown stallion Emperor, by Enquirer-Vandalite, and the broodmares Disdain, Quandary, and Vestella. Rancocas will no doubt soon become as famous for its thoroughbreds as it was five years ago.

Chapman is working hard to get the Louisville directors to raise money so to purchase the releases of Keefe, Childs and McQuery. The universal opinion of people who saw the International league club play is that Keefe is the star pitcher of that league.

Foutz, Caruthers, and Bushong can congratulate themselves as lucky ball-players. They have played in the world championship series four out of five seasons it has been in vogue—in 1885, 1886, and 1887 with the St. Louis club, and now, in 1889, with the Brooklyns.

Darby, the champion jumper of England, intends visiting the United States. He has issued a challenge to jump any man in America from two to twenty jumps, without weights, spring shoes barred, for £200, the Police Gazette to be stake-holder and appoint referee. He also offers to arrange a match with any man in America twenty running-jumps, and allow Dane, Hamilton, Sullivan, or any living ten feet start, for £200 or £1,000 a side. John Mitchell, Darby's backer, will accompany him.

"The greatest little knocker-out England has produced in years," says Jack Carkeek, the wrestler, who has just returned from Europe, "is Sammy Baxter. I saw him at Plymouth. He is the last man you'd pick in a crowd of a hundred for a champion of punishing fighters. He doesn't look the fighter at all. He had a lot of bigger pugilists with him. They all owned up that they didn't care to fight him. He doesn't look to me to weigh 125 pounds. He has a little hand, a slim wrist, and a white, boyish face, perfectly beardless. He is a right-hand knocker out and such a little terror that good men ten to twenty pounds heavier can not get backing against him. He has put out 140 to 150 pound men, one after another, and so quickly and unerringly that there is no arguing against his being a phenomenon in a class by himself."

MOURNED FOR THE WRONG MAN

Weeping Relatives Confronted by One Thought Dead and Buried.

Patrick Grogan, who had been employed for a number of years in the capacity of engineer in the Delaware State almshouse at New Castle was reported killed by the explosion of a boiler in that institution.

His two nephews, George and James Grogan, of Philadelphia were notified and repaired to New Castle. A coroner and jury were summoned and the verdict was that Patrick Grogan came to his death from the effects of wounds received by the explosion of a boiler in the State almshouse.

After the inquest the body was immediately taken to a house in Wilmington. An old-fashioned Irish wake was held. The funeral took place from St. Mary's Catholic church. Patrick had property, mostly real estate, worth $10,000. An administrator was appointed and the property sold. Just as the administrator was about to distribute the money among the heirs Patrick himself appeared and badly frightened his friends. He explained that he went to Virginia on a hunting trip, left a pauper to run the almshouse engine, and provided the pauper with his own working clothes to wear in the engine room. It was the pauper who was killed and mutilated by the explosion, and whose body was given such a splendid burial by Patrick's weeping relatives.

ANCIENT FLOWERS.

The Pretty Blossoms Which Moses May Have Plucked When a Boy.

In Bulak, a suburb of Cairo, is the national museum of Egyptian antiquities, founded about thirty years ago by a Frenchman commonly known as Mariette Bey, says Youth's Companion. One department is devoted to an interesting collection of specimens of plants which have been found in the sepulchral monuments of that country.

It is remarkable that, though the botanical collection is large, and contains many varieties, every plant is still to be found growing in the valley of the Nile. Moreover, the closest examination fails to reveal the slightest difference between the plants that flourished fifty centuries ago and those which the traveler sees to-day on the banks of the river.

The very flowers which the boy Moses or the children of Joseph picked still bloom unchanged, even in color. There are to be seen here blue sprays of larkspur, which loving hands laid upon the bodies of those who died a thousand years before Abraham and Sarah went down into Egypt.

"THE GREAT CORN PALACE."

The committees that have in charge the arrangements for the coming Corn Palace at Sioux City, promise a display far exceeding anything of the character heretofore attempted. The Corn Palace itself, built entirely of corn and grain, will fitly illustrate the agricultural resources of the vast area of country tributary to Sioux City, and the internal displays will epitomize the progress and enterprise of the hosts of earnest workers who are pushing the developement of that favored region in which "Corn is King."

To enable all to visit this "Eighth Wonder of the World," the Chicago & Northwestern Railway will sell Excursion tickets to Sioux City at half rates or one fare for the round trip.

The Corn Palace will be open September 23d, and close October 5th, and during that period numerous special trains will be run for the accommodation of visitors.

Tickets and full information can be obtained on application to agents of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company.

Ill Winds

That blow "naebody any good" are plenty on the storm-vexed Atlantic, to say nothing of the occasionally typhoon-swept Pacific. The hapless voyager, when shaken up by the heavings of the "briny" should take that pleasantest and most salutary of doses, a wineglassful of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest stomachic and tonic that ever warmed, regulated and quieted the human interior. Railroad jolted and steamship shaken travelers will exercise a wise provision by supplying themselves with a sufficiency of this incomparable medicine for the journey. So will mariners, emigrants to the west, and others about to "seek fresh fields and pastures new." Malaria, the scourge of newly cleared and mining districts, is completely conquered and surely averted by the Bitters. Liver, bowel and kidney complaint and incipient rheumatism it annihilates.

TO MONTANA, OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

If you are going west bear in mind the following facts: The Northern Pacific Railroad owns and operates 987 miles, or 57 per cent. of the entire railroad mileage of Montana; spans the territory with its main lines from east to west; is the short line to Helena; the only Pullman and dining car line to Butte, and is the only line that reaches Miles City, Billings, Bozeman, Missoula, the Yellowstone National Park and, in fact, nine-tenths of the cities and points of interest in the territory.

The Northern Pacific owns and operates 621 miles or 56 per cent of the railroad mileage of Washington, its main line extending from the Idaho line via Spokane Falls, Cheney, Sprague, Yakima and Ellensburg, through the center of the territory to Tacoma and Seattle, and from Tacoma to Portland. No other transcontinental through rail line reaches any portion of Washington Territory. Ten days stop over privileges are given on Northern Pacific second class tickets at Spokane Falls and all points west, thus affording intending settlers an excellent opportunity to see the entire territory without incurring the expense of paying local fares from point to point.

The Northern Pacific is the shortest route from St. Paul to Tacoma by 207 miles: to Seattle by 177 miles, and to Portland by 324 miles—time correspondingly shorter, varying from one to two days, according to destination. No other line from St. Paul or Minneapolis runs through passenger cars of any kind into Idaho, Oregon or Washington.

In addition to being the only rail line to Spokane Falls, Tacoma and Seattle, the Northern Pacific reaches all the principal points in Northern Minnesota and Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Bear in mind that the Northern Pacific and Shasta line is the scenic route to all points in California.

Send for illustrated pamphlets, maps, and books giving you valuable information in reference to the country traversed by this great line from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Ashland to Portland, Oregon, and Tacoma and Seattle, Washington, Territory, and enclose stamps for the new 1889 Rand McNally County map of Washington Territory, printed in colors.

CHANGE OF SUBJECT.

DR. GUNSAULUS' LECTURE ON FRIDAY EVENING.

At the suggestion of some who have heard Dr. Gunsaulus, a change has been made in the subject of his lecture for next Friday evening. It is now expected that he will speak on "Savonarola".

His address on the life, character and times of this renowned Italian monk, reformer and martyr may be said to be a masterpiece of "genuine oratory and finished eloquence."

The Gazette takes pleasure in announcing the orchestra from the School for the Blind will be present at the church before the lecture Friday evening and will entertain the people with their music as they are coming in.

MATRIMONIAL.

STEVENS-JUDD.

Last evening at half past seven o'clock a very quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hadden, No. 65 North First street, second ward, only a few relatives and intimate friends being present. The contracting parties were Mr. Chas. D. Stevens and Miss Clara A. Judd, the Rev. C. F. Elliot, pator of All Souls church, officiating. After the ceremony the company sat down to a sumptuous wedding supper prepared by the bride. Both of the contracting parties are well known in this city, the groom being the junior partner of the firm of Palmer & Stevens, druggist of the city and is a live, wide awake and enterprising young business man. The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. S. S. Judd. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left on the early train for Chicago to be gone a day or two and will on their return take up their abode at the home of the groom, No. 13 Milwaukee avenue. The newly married couple have the sincere congratulations of a large circle of friends, and the Gazette joins in wishing them health and prosperity.

ALEX GALBRAITH.

HE IS AGAIN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN SHIRE HORSE-BREEDER'S ASSOCIATION.

At the recent meeting of the American Shire Horse-Breeders Association, held in Chicago during the Great Horse Show, Mr. Alex. Galbraith, of the firm of Galbraith Brothers, this city, was reelected president of the associataion. The Breeder's Gazette publishes a very fine portrait of our fellow-townsman, with the following complimentary notice:—

Mr. Alex. Galbraith, the universally esteemed president of the American Shire Horse-Breeders' Association, is now in his thirty-sixth year. He was born and brought up on the farm at Croy Cunningham, Killearn, (near Glasgow,) Scotland, but entered a mercantile life at Glasgow when a boy of sixteen, remaining in that city for a period of fourteen years. He came to America in the spring of 1883, and has since resided at Janesville, Wis., at which place the American stables of the large importing and breeding firm of Galbraith Bros., are located. Mr. Galbraith is a man of refinement and culture and counts as a personal friend almost every leading draft-horse breeder and importer in the United States. He has labored earnestly and successfully for the advancement of the interests of the British breeds of draft stock in the new world, and the fact that he has twice been unanimously chosen as president of the Shire Horse Society, affords abundant testimony as to the honesty, fidelity and capacity he brings to the discharge of both his public and private duties.

THE RATTLER'S MISTAKE.

The Unanimity with Which a Rescue Party Offered an Antidote.

Justice of the Peace Kehoe has returned from a month's sojourn at Rubicon Springs. He relates the following amusing incident, which for a time relieved the monotony of life at that secluded mountain resort:

While wandering about in the vicinity of Rockbound Lake, accompanied by a boy, the Judge was struck on the leg by the fangs of a large rattlesnake. The boy witnessed the snake strike the Judge's leg, and ran back to the hotel at Rubicon and gave the alarm.

A rescue party was hurriedly organized by the guests. The party, armed at least with a barrel of whisky in flasks, decanters and bottles, hastened in the direction of the spot where the Judge had been bitten by the venomous reptile. The members of the rescue party had not proceeded far on their humane mission when they observed the Judge approaching—his usual limp in walking seemed greatly intensified to their alarmed imagination. A grand rush was made for the Judge, and a hundred flasks were instantly uncorked, the odor of whisky supplanting that of fragrant pines, firs and wild flowers—each owner of a flask being eager to have the Judge first partake of its contents, and others endeavoring to strip his trousers off to apply healing ointment to the wound.

The Judge was finally able to explain that he had been struck on the leg by a rattler, and, while indicating with his finger the spot where the reptile's poisonous fangs struck, remarked that it was his wooden leg that had been bitten, and therefore the wound would not prove serious. The Judge afterward killed the snake and exhibited the end of the tail as a trophy, which is ornamented with seven rattles.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM HON. S. C. CARR.

To the Editor.

We left Los Angeles October 29 on Southern P. R. R. for San Francisco. 100 miles out we pass through mountains where the road is very crooked; the Loop is said to be the only one in this country where the road runs through a tunnel and takes a circuit around and up the mountain and passes directly over the tunnel; again we soon leave these mountains and glide out into San Joaquin valley 400 miles in length and 75 in breadth, large enough for an empire; for miles and miles it is level as the ocean. Fresno, 200 miles south of San Francisco, is the geographical center of the state; 10,000 inhabitants. We stop here one day. This is the home of Mrs. Hill-Sharon-Terry as she is called in court. Your readers will remember reading about Mrs. Hill trying to get the millionaire Sharon's property by swearing in court that she was his wife, when it was shown and so decided by Judge Field in his court in this state, that she was not the legal wife of Sharon at the time of his death, and for resisting a United States marshal she and her then husband, Judge Terry, were sent to jail, he for six months and she for thirty days. Mrs. Terry is now living in Fresno in great style.

This is a great wheat valley; large ware houses at nearly every station are filled with wheat.

A steam-plow, with thirty plows in a gang, drawn by a steam engine, running night and day—with head and side lights upon it at night—turning over 80 acres of land every twenty-four hours is running at Tulare. It is no uncommon thing to see four or five teams with eight horses in each team, drawing four and five plows in a gang—horses stretched out one span ahead of another.

To-day, November 4th, I am with my brother, E. E. Carr, visiting Judge Geo. Steele, on a part of what was his 47,000 acre ranch in Arrogo Grande, San Louis Obispo county, six miles from San Louis Obispo city, near the coast. He has 80 head of horses, 400 hogs and 500 head of cattle. I have just come in from witnessing the branding and marking of 100 head of cattle that the judge had just bought, putting his own brand upon each one; his majordomo, with the assistance of three young vacquerros, two on horses with lassos and one on foot in the corell. One boy throws his lasso over the head of the animal, then quickly winding it over the pommel of his saddle the horse bracing his feet out and holding the steer, while the other one has thrown a lasso from the horse around the two hind legs, and then winding it around the pommel of his saddle. Horses are in opposite directions facing each other with feet braced, holding the animal stretched out on the ground between them, while the third boy takes the branding iron from the majordomo, who hands it to him from the fire and stamps it upon the animal until the hide is burnt nearly to the flesh. Judge Steele is a brother of Major-General Steele, who during the war was with General Grant at Vicksburg, and gained considerable notoriety by his bravery. No doubt many soldier readers of this paper will remember him. More anon. S. C. CARR.

New seeding in almost every instance has been killed out and pastures have been eat off short. But to offset all this, we have been blessed with fine weather for doing fall work, not many days lost by rain or storm, and when the work season closes we no doubt will have our portion of rain and snow as usual, to moisten up mother earth for another season.

—The social at C. H. Stoller's was postponed on account of the weather, and will meet on Thursday, Nov. 21st, if stormy the next evening. A cordial invitation is extended. Sandwiches and cake for refreshments.

THE EAST AFRICAN MASSACRE.

Confirmation of the Death of Dr. Peters --British Interests Will be Protected.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Dispatches received at the foreign office from Zanzibar confirm the report of the massacre of Dr. Peters and his party of natives near Korkora, east Africa.

Since the news arrived of the homeward march of Stanley with Emin Pasha and his party and of the reported disaster to Dr. Peters' relief expedition the British East African company has been picking up all the best available men to send out to protect its territories from raids by the rebellious natives. Capt. Lugard, whose name is well known in connection with the Lake Nyassa troubles, and Mr. George S. Mackenzie and 150 men left for Mombassa this week. The latest news from that region indicates that all the native elements are up in arms and are for the moment brethren in a common cause—to drive out the now detested foreigners. This serious uprising on the part of the natives is attributed to Capt. Wissmann's attempt to increase the sphere of German influence by exterminating the people.

A NEW WINTER GAME.

"BALLOON" OR WINTER TENNIS—HOW IT IS PLAYED.

"Balloon," or, as it might more properly be called, winter tennis, is a new game which is bound to become a decided popular one among lawn tennis lovers during the months when it is too cold to play their favorite game out of doors. It is founded upon lawn tennis, but is so arranged that it may be played in a parlor without the slightest danger of causing damage to the most delicate bric a-brac. It takes a remarkably delicate touch and skill in handling a racquet, fine judgment, a good eye and active limbs to play the game perfectly, but it is also well adapted to the most delicate persons.

The society editor of the Oshkosh Northwestern illustrates this game as follows: Instead of a rubber ball, as in tennis, an inflated toy balloon, such as are sold to children on the streets, is used. The balloon, however, is not filled with light gas but simply with air. When inflated its specific gravity is not much more than that of a soap bubble. The balloons when inflated are about seven or eight inches in diameter. Racquets the same in shape as those used in tennis, except that they are made of bamboo and silk, and are consequently much lighter, are important factors in the game of balloon. Instead of a net there is a large hoop supported on a standard. The hoop is about two feet in diameter, and stands about five feet from the floor. It is placed between the players.

The game consists of a contest between two players for points by batting the balloon through the hoop with the racquets. The one first scoring fifty points wins a game, and the one scoring five games wins a contest. Each player becomes in turn a "server." The server takes a position eight feet from the hoop. The opposing player stands about three feet from the other side of the hoop. The server tosses the balloon with one hand or with the racquet straight up in the air, and upon its fall proceeds to bat it through the hoop. To accomplish this three consecutive strokes are allowed. After the first stroke, but not before, the server may follow up the balloon in order to direct it through the hoop with the remaining stroke or strokes. A failure to put the balloon through the hoop in three strokes counts ten for the opposite player, It takes considerable practice to put the balloon through the hoop in the required number of strokes, and a good deal of activity.

When the balloon is served through the hoop the opposite player tries to return it through, two strokes only being allowed for that purpose. If the balloon has been skillfully served this requires great adroitness and a very cool head. It brings all the tennis player's skill into requisition, and requires a much more delicate touch than the outdoor game. When the balloon has been successfully returned the server tries in turn with two strokes to put it through the hoop, and so the players continue it through the hoop, when the player is ended and ten counted by the player last putting the ball through successfully. Should the balloon touch the floor after passing through the hoop before it it is again struck for a return twenty points are counted for the server. The balloon touching the floor ends the play in all cases, whether during service before the balloon has gone through the hoop or afterwards.

It will be seen by the careful perusal of the above that counts are made only on the failure to put the balloon through the hoop, or to prevent it touching the floor after going through. This game will be hailed with delight by all lovers of tennis, as it will give them an opportunity to practice at home all through the winter months. It is safe to predict that it will be the popular sport for indoor exercise for a long time to come.

NEW YORK SOCIAL CHIT CHAT.

The "at home" will not be in order until the advent of Thanksgiving month.

It is to be 4 instead of 5 o'clock tea this season, with the thin English bread-and-butter feature.

Amateur theatricals, a fashionable means to a charitable end, will break out early this season all along the Mayfair line.

Literary classes are talked of, but not yet organized. The material for the fad is not as intellectual as could be wished.

New York society women whose photographs are displayed in the Paris exposition are the recipient of many compliments.

It is rather early for social predictions, of course, but nevertheless plenty of people are saying it is going to be a "very gay season."

Society will make a specialty soon of the entertainment of titled Englishmen, who come over to make the "return visit" as it were.

When everybody else is returning from Europe a few socially distinguished New Yorkers pack up and Arab-like "quietly steal away."

There will be an effort made to break up the custom of professional entertainers employed to assist or relieve the hostess at dinners and receptions. The abuse of it last season has suggested the abolition of the "fad."

Widowers who are well equipped financially are in great demand matrimonially, and almost rival the divorced woman or "alienated wife" in being quickly snapped up for marriage purposes. And these are only some of the straws that show the social changes in Gotham.

The bride wearing her great grandmother's lace veil, kept on ice or in camphor all the credulous years, has already appeared and elicited kind notice at the hands of Jenkins. It is dificult to decide how much salt should be sprinkled on the sennual "features of the season."

An alleged novel to be published before long is said to have been written by a woman once in, but now outside, the gates of the "Four Hundred," and is further said to expose the shams and humbugs of fashionable life in a style calculated to cause both grief and anger all along the line of Mayfair.
